The Cardinal Virtues: Prudence

Two weeks ago I wrote about the idea of virtue. If you recall, the simple definition of a virtue is: a habitual and firm disposition to do the good. A bit more complete definition is this: human (moral) virtues are firm attitudes, stable dispositions, habitual perfections of intellect and will that govern our actions, order our passions, and guide our conduct according to reason and faith. There are four more central virtues called the “Cardinal Virtues” which all of the other virtues are grouped around (“cardinal” comes not from the bird but from the Latin word “cardines” which means “hinges” thus the Cardinal Virtues are the “hinges” of the other virtues). The Cardinal Virtues are Prudence, Justice, Temperance, and Fortitude.

This week we will look at the first Cardinal Virtue, Prudence. For many of us, when we think of someone being “prudent” we may be tempted to think that he or she has refrained from doing something. For example, it is “prudent” not to drive 100 miles per hour because it is both dangerous and is breaking legitimate laws designed to promote public order and possibly subjecting the driver to hefty penalties. But that’s only half of the story. Prudence also disposes us to choose to act, not just to choose not to act. A simple way of looking at this virtue is that prudence disposes us to choose the morally good action. In other words, prudence disposes our intellect to discern our true good and to choose the right means of achieving it. Going all the way back to Aristotle and adapted by the great theologian and Doctor of the Church, St. Thomas Aquinas, we can simply say that prudence is “right reason in action.” Thus it is prudence that guides the judgment of conscience and the prudent person determines and directs his or her conduct in accordance with this judgment. With the help of prudence we apply moral principles to particular cases without error and overcome doubts about the good to achieve and the evil to avoid. (CCC n. 1806)

So, would it ever be “prudent” to drive 100 miles per hour? I suppose if there was a life threatening situation in which someone needed immediate medical attention, a prudent course of action would be to drive as fast as one safely could after using one’s intellect to consider a number of factors, such as the immediate status of the person, the experience of the driver, the condition of the vehicle, road conditions, amount of traffic, etc. After considering these factors, a person, guided by prudence, might indeed decide to drive 100 miles per hour in this situation and would be doing so virtuously and prudently.

Given the scope of the virtue of prudence, we can see why it is called the “mother” of the other human virtues, for one could not be just, patient, temperate, humble, chaste, or any other virtue without also being prudent at the same time. Thus it is important for us to seek to develop this virtue with the goal of assisting us to strengthen all virtues. In the end, the more virtuous we are, the more rightly we think and act, the closer we will be to God.

As with all virtues, we build them up through practice. Practicing the virtue of prudence requires us to form our consciences according to truth, to learn and be aware of universal moral principles, and to exercise firm judgment and decisions based on these principles. We can start small and with each success build up within ourselves the virtue of prudence.

God Bless,
Father Joseph Byerley

MAY 30 — THE MOST HOLY TRINITY

Reading I: Deuteronomy 4:32-34, 39-40

Moses said to the people: "Ask now of the days of old, before your time, ever since God created man upon the earth; ask from one end of the sky to the other: Did anything so great ever happen before? Was it ever heard of? Did a people ever hear the voice of God speaking from the midst of fire, as you did, and live? Or did any god venture to go and take a nation for himself from the midst of another nation, by testings, by signs and wonders, by war, with strong hand and outstretched arm, and by great terrors, all of which the LORD, your God, did for you in Egypt before your very eyes? This is why you must now know, and fix in your heart, that the LORD is God in the heavens above and on earth below, and that there is no other. You must keep his statutes and commandments that I enjoin on you today, that you and your children after you may prosper, and that you may have long life on the land which the LORD, your God, is giving you forever."

Reading II: I Romans 8:14-17

Brothers and sisters: For those who are led by the Spirit of God are sons of God. For you did not receive a spirit of slavery to fall back into fear, but you received a Spirit of adoption, through whom we cry, "Abba, Father!" The Spirit himself bears witness with our spirit that we are children of God, and if children, then heirs, heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ, if only we suffer with him so that we may also be glorified with him.

Gospel: Matthew 28: 16-20

The eleven disciples went to Galilee, to the mountain to which Jesus had ordered them. When they all saw him, they worshiped, but they doubted. Then Jesus approached and said to them, "All power in heaven and on earth has been given to me. Go, therefore, and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all that I have commanded you. And behold, I am with you always, until the end of the age."

READINGS FOR THE WEEK

Reading I: Deuteronomy 4: 32-34, 39-40

This selection highlights the unique calling of the Chosen People, which the author links with the uniqueness of Yahweh.

Reading II: Romans 8: 14-17

Through the Spirit the Christian becomes an adopted "Child of God." This allows him and her to call God "Abba," which is translated "Daddy."

The Gospel: Matthew 28: 16-20

This closing section of Matthew's gospel comprises what has come to be called "The Great Commission." By reason of their baptism, future converts will be able to share God the Son's life. Additionally, they will acknowledge the fact that, according to Jesus, God is three Persons yet One.
