Focus of the Mass

There is a fundamental question that is often asked about the Mass: Is Mass primarily adoration of God or is it first and foremost a vehicle for the instruction of the people and the upbuilding of the community? Much of the debate and discussion as well as the tension regarding translations of the bible and the Missal (the book of prayers the priest uses at Mass), liturgical style, church architecture, liturgical roles of the clergy and laity, music composition, church artwork often hinge on this question. While the question of the precedence of adoration or of the community isn't always explicit, it is still nearly always present implicitly. In posing this question I don't think there is an attempt to force an "either/or" position where there is a "both/and" situation. Without a doubt both aspects of adoration and community are critically important and there are times within the Mass itself where one of the aspects naturally takes priority, but looking at the Mass as a whole the question still needs to be answered. And in the answer, rests the whole value of and reason for the Mass.

From the earliest Church councils, through the Second Vatican Council, the church has constantly maintained that the principal focus of the Mass is adoration of God. The Second Vatican Council, for instance, calls the Eucharist, "the source and summit of Christian worship." Clearly, the Mass before anything else is the worship and adoration of God. And it is through our adoration of God, through the participation of Jesus' sacrifice, that we become a community. It is our faith in Christ's passion, death, and resurrection that unites us. We are one community, we form one body in Jesus not just because of Jesus. Because of this, our worship should be centered on Christ, not on us. While we are the ultimate beneficiaries of worship (for we can't add anything to God's glory), it is only beneficial to us when we properly fix our gaze on God and understand our complete dependence on Him. However, when our words and gestures, or indeed anything we do at Mass (music, art, church design, etc.) becomes anthropocentric (man-centered) instead of Theocentric (God-centered) we begin to lose our awareness of our dependence on God and risk losing what it means to be Christian in the first place.

I don't want to sound overdramatic, but I believe this is a real risk in our contemporary culture. We live in a society where the individual is exalted and it tends to idolize, even "deify" the human person. For the most part, it has always been so in the world. Since the fall of humanity, the action of Satan involves a concerted effort to turn man's gaze from God. But when we walk through the doors of a Church and participate in the saving event of the passion, death, and resurrection of Christ, the event that destroyed Satan's grasp on man, we should get the sense that we are walking into another world. A world set apart, a sacred world, a world as it is meant to be. Everything we do at Mass (and before and after Mass) must be designed to focus our attention, our hearts, our devotion, and our love toward God. And if we want to fully participate in the Mass, the manner in which we present ourselves before God says a lot about our interior disposition.

Anyone who has a role in and participates in the Mass (which is everyone) must be always on guard from letting the world encroach on the sacredness and God-centeredness of the Mass. Coming early to pray and prepare, turning off your phone, dressing appropriately, participating in the parts of the Mass, not leaving early etc. are things that we can do to help us focus on God. For it is the power of Christ's death and resurrection that is made present at Mass that is intended to transform the world rather than being transformed by the world. When we appreciate and understand this, it is then we become a true Christian community and can be most effective in building up the Kingdom of God.

May we all constantly strive to do our best to focus our worship on God and God alone and thereby receive, in abundance, his unifying love and strength in order to, as his sacred community, make present to the world the saving love of God.

God Bless you,
Father Joseph Byerley

PRAYER FOR PRIESTLY VOCATIONS

"Lord Jesus, we ask you to bless the Diocese of Camden with an increase in vocations to the priesthood.

We pray that young men from our parishes and families will hear your call and be both generous and courageous in their response.

May more young men serve you as priests who teach the faith, preach the Gospel, celebrate the sacraments and make you present among us through their ministry. Encourage them to embrace the joy-filled and fulfilling life of a diocesan priest.

May parents support priestly vocations in their families by prayer and good example. We entrust these prayers through Mary Immaculate, our patroness, hopeful that you will bless our diocese with more Priests in the near future, who live and reign forever and ever. Amen."

LIVING STEWARDSHIP

"...For his sake I have accepted the loss of all things and I consider them so much rubbish, that I may gain Christ..."
- -Philippians 3:8

The first commandment says that we should not put other gods before the Lord. Sharing all of our gifts.

Living Stewardship by sharing our time in prayer, our talent in charitable works, and our treasure to support the Church helps us keep God first in everything

It helps us from putting other gods before God. It helps us from becoming a slave to our possessions. It helps us to use our gifts for the glory of God and not for the glory of ourselves.
