Virtue and Vice

The simple definition of “virtue” is “a habitual and firm disposition to do the good.” A virtuous person tends toward the good with all his or her sensory and spiritual powers. The virtuous person pursues the good and chooses it in concrete actions. Human virtues themselves “are firm attitudes, stable dispositions, habitual perfections of intellect and will that govern our actions, order our passions, and guide our conduct according to reason and faith.” (CCC n.1804) For example, a person who displays the virtue of patience not only chooses to be patient, but also wants to be patient and enjoys being patient. A truly patient person is not the same as one who struggles to be patient.

Think of the following illustration. There is an obvious difference between someone who correctly assembles a child’s new toy bike only after much hesitation, difficulty and a great deal of time and someone who assembles the bike with ease, hardly looking at the directions. While both have the ability to correctly finish the task, the second person can be said to be “mechanically inclined” and possesses an affinity or a disposition for that type of activity that makes it both easy and pleasurable for the person to successfully complete such tasks. Likewise, there is a difference between someone who makes the right choice of behavior only with great hesitation and difficulty on one hand and the virtuous person who chooses well with ease because he or she is disposed to.

A human being is composed of body and soul, and has various capacities and powers: He or she has intellectual powers (the capacity to know and understand), appetitive powers (the capacity to desire or feel), and decisive powers (the capacity to choose or will). Although choosing something is itself an act of the will, we make our choices based on what we have judged to be good (or bad) in some way as well as how we feel about it or what our desire is. Because of the complexity of the human being we can be disposed to do well or badly according to how the different powers we possess affect us at the time. For example, our emotions and/or desires may have a disposition to go one way independently of our judgment of what is truly good often giving rise to inner conflict, or worse, immoral behavior. Habitual dispositions to choose and do what is good are called virtues while habitual dispositions to choose and do what is wrong are called vices. Hence a virtuous person is disposed to do the good while a vicious person is disposed to do wrong.

It sounds like it’s pretty hard to be totally virtuous. And there probably aren’t too many of us who are truly, fully virtuous in the full meaning of the term. While we may possess certain virtues (that is in some areas we are habitually disposed to do the right thing and want to do it), we can also struggle to want and/or do the good in other areas, and finally in other areas, we may possess certain vices as well.

So what do we do to become virtuous? We read in the Catechism, “The moral virtues are acquired by human effort. They are the fruit and seed of morally good acts; they dispose all the powers of the human being for communion with divine love.” (CCC n.1804) In other words, we develop virtues by practicing the virtue and being aided by God’s grace. For instance, we become patient by being patient. As we struggle against the desire or inclination to be impatient, each successful attempt at being patient we will begin to take control of ourselves and to develop the virtue of patience. This of course, goes hand in hand with asking for God’s help and worthily receiving the Sacraments. It works the same way for the other human virtues. Our job is to identify those areas that we need to work on and consciously attempt to change our behavior to what is good, eventually our emotions will follow.

God bless you,
Father Joseph Byerley

CONTEMPLATIVE PRAYER AND THE HOLY INDWELLING OF THE TRINITY

On April 4, 2025, an article was printed In the Catholic Star Herald entitled Contemplative Prayer and the Meaning of Lent. It was written by Scott Reichert a staff member of Our Sunday Visitor news.

The article spoke about contemplative prayer, the Cloud of Unknowing, and the paths of Christian prayer for lay persons in our Catholic tradition. Some of these topics we have discussed in our Scripture group.

I would like to offer an hour a month dedicated to contemplative prayer for those interested. Our first meeting will be on Saturday, June 14 at 11AM in the Parish Center.

I would like to dedicate this hour to Father Patrick OP from County Cork, Ireland. Father Patrick was one of three Dominican priests who gave our 2024 Parish Mission. He gave a marvelous talk on the Holy Indwelling that he called the Greatest Secret in Catholic Theology. The Holy Indwelling of the Trinity in the Christian that begins at Baptism is the basis for contemplative prayer.

If you are looking to possibly enhance your prayer experience, come and join us. If you have questions, call me. If you are interested but this time is not good for you, give me a call as well.

VITALity

Catholic Healthcare Services

A HEALTHCARE MINISTRY OF THE DIOCESE OF CAMDEN
MAY IS MENTAL HEALTH AWARENESS MONTH

What is mental health? Mental health refers to our overall well-being and affects how a person feels, thinks or behaves. It can change as we age and go through life stages. Our mental health can impact our physical health, ability to navigate stress and our interactions with others.

Some signs to be aware for mental health include:

- ◆ Changes in mood – this can be affected by weather, people, activities or other circumstances.
- ◆ Changes in sleep patterns - sleeping too much, not getting enough sleep or waking frequently from sleep can affect mental health.
- ◆ Changes in eating patterns - eating more or less than usual or choosing foods higher in salt, sugar and carbohydrate content with little or no nutrients can have an impact.
- ◆ Unusual difficulty concentrating - having to think hard to recall things such as dates, names and what you were doing that is not normal for you.
- ◆ Being fearful and constantly worrying about health, finances or other aspects of life.
- ◆ Decline in chronic health or mental health issues can be due to stress.

Tips to Support Mental Health:

- ◆ Be mindful - Mindfulness of your thoughts, words and behavior is a good indicator of your mental health.
- ◆ Track your mood – Make notes on how you feel and when you feel them to help identify patterns of negative emotions and feelings.
- ◆ Identify coping strategies – We all cope with emotions differently. Do you stress-eat, smoke, or drink alcohol when you're upset? Do you call a friend, pray or go for a walk when you feel down? Think about how your coping strategies work for you.
- ◆ Maintain regular exercise, eat healthy, balanced meals and get adequate sleep.
- ◆ Make one small change at a time – taking on too much can be overwhelming.

Please contact us with any questions or if you need assistance at 888-268-4825 or visit www.vitality.camdendiocese.org.
