The Virtue of Fortitude

The next Cardinal Virtue on the list is Fortitude. But before we get to it, I noticed that when I gave the introduction to virtue a few weeks back, I had neglected to offer an ancient and helpful rule of thumb regarding the measurement of virtue. Along with describing virtue as the habitual disposition to will and to do the good, virtue can also be described perhaps in a more familiar way as the mean between the two extremes of excess and deficit. For instance, the virtue of patience is the mean between the deficit (absence) of patience, called impatience, and the excess of patience, which could be called apathy or complacency.

OK, now onto fortitude. The Catechism teaches that, “Fortitude is the mortal virtue that ensures firmness in difficulties and constancy in the pursuit of the good. It strengthens the resolve to resist temptations and to overcome obstacles in the moral life. The virtue of fortitude enables one to conquer fear, even fear of death, and to face trials and persecutions. It disposes one even to renounce and sacrifice his life in defense of a just cause.” (CCC 1808)

Returning to the idea that a virtue is the mean between two extremes, it may be illuminative to look at the extreme excess and defect of fortitude. Can you guess them? The excess of fortitude would be foolhardiness where one would take unnecessarily dangerous risks for an unimportant cause. The defect of (or lack of) fortitude would be cowardice. If virtue is the mean between two extremes, then for the virtue of fortitude, we should avoid its excess by being willing to suffer for its own sake (i.e., without sufficient reason), and we should also avoid the deficit of fortitude that occurs when we run from suffering merely because it is unpleasant. In the end, fortitude is the virtue that enables us to be strong in the face of opposition, including being willing to suffer for a just cause.

The virtue of fortitude, although a human virtue, can assist us in coming closer to the Lord by courageously doing what is good even in difficult circumstances. It reminds me of the Lord’s parable of the Sower and the Seed. The seed (i.e. the Word of God) that fell on rocky soil was initially received with enthusiasm and began to grow, but when trial and persecution came along, it quickly withered. There was no fortitude there. A more contemporary illustration of true fortitude was related in a speech by Admiral James Stockdale. Admiral Stockdale won the Congressional Medal of Honor for his leadership as a prisoner of war in the infamous and brutal Hoa Lo prison camp, known as the “Hanoi Hilton” in Vietnam. In a speech he gave to the Midshipmen at the U.S. Naval Academy he spoke about character and stated, “The test of character is not ‘hanging in there’ when you expect a light at the end of the tunnel, but performance of duty and persistence of example when you know no light is coming. Believe me, I’ve been there.” That is a very poignant example of what true fortitude really is.

Again, with all human virtues, we acquire and develop them through their practice. While it may not be possible to overcome all of our fear of suffering for a just cause right away, we can certainly get there by starting out small. Maybe the next time someone at work or a friend mocks our Christian Faith or advocates some kind of immorality perhaps you could gently yet firmly defend the truth accepting whatever “razzing” you might endure because of it. That would be a great way of developing the great and very important virtue of fortitude.

God bless you,
Father Joseph Byerley

STEWARDS PRAY

“But when he comes, the Spirit of truth, he will guide you to all truth...” - -John 16:13

It has been said that the best gift we can give someone is to teach them how to pray. If you don't talk and more importantly, listen, to God every day, how else will you know what He is calling you to do? Just as you talk to family and friends every day, get in the habit of talking with God every day.

Develop a Stewardship daily prayer routine. Keep your prayers simple and sincere. This is best done in silence, when you can hear God's response.

PRAYER FOR PRIESTLY VOCATIONS

“Lord Jesus, we ask you to bless the Diocese of Camden with an increase in vocations to the priesthood. We pray that young men from our parishes and families will hear your call and be both generous and courageous in their response.

May more young men serve you as priests who teach the faith, preach the Gospel, celebrate the sacraments and make you present among us through their ministry. Encourage them to embrace the joy-filled and fulfilling life of a diocesan priest.

May parents support priestly vocations in their families by prayer and good example. We entrust these prayers through Mary Immaculate, our patroness, hopeful that you will bless our diocese with more Priests in the near future, who live and reign forever and ever. Amen.”
