The Virtue of Justice

Justice is both a complex and, in today's world, a very weighty issue. Justice is also connected to the concept of the rights of individuals and communities. From the ancient Greek philosophers until modern time, people have written volumes on the ideas of justice and rights. I could not hope to be comprehensive in a short column, but I will try to outline its basic principles, hopefully giving a helpful approach we can use to address this important issue. It should be noted that the Church believes that the virtue of justice is the foundation of all discussion on justice.

As always, we shall begin with the definition of justice and proceed from there. Most definitions of justice are deceptively simple for such a complex idea. The Catechism gives a version of the classic definition of Justice, "Justice is the moral virtue that consists in the constant and firm will to give their due to God and neighbor. Justice toward God is called the "virtue of religion." Justice toward men disposes one to respect the rights of each and to establish in human relationships the harmony that promotes equity with regard to persons and to the common good. The just man, often mentioned in the Sacred Scriptures, is distinguished by habitual right thinking and the uprightness of his conduct toward his neighbor. "You shall not be partial to the poor or defer to the great, but in righteousness shall you judge your neighbor." "Masters, treat your slaves justly and fairly, knowing that you also have a Master in heaven." (CCC 1807) Since virtue requires the "constant and firm" will to live out the virtue, one can only possess the particular virtue if one actually lives it out on a regular basis. However it is possible that one can perform a virtuous act in a given situation without necessarily possessing the virtue. Ultimately, it is our job to develop the virtues through their practice in cooperation with God's grace so that they can become part of us, making it easier for us to follow the greatest commandment, "to love God above all things and our neighbor as ourselves."

But back to justice. What does it mean to give a person his "due", that is, what he deserves? It's not always easy to see, that's for sure. If you would allow me to bypass the theological and philosophical discussion and get right to the answer, what is "due" to a person is due by reason of creation. Justice comes from our basic human nature and dignity as God has created us. This is because every external act performed by a person has some sort of social consequence. One way of looking at justice is to do one's duty towards another. Another way of putting it, being "just" is to recognize and treat someone according to his or her human dignity. While it's easy to follow the norms of justice when it is based on agreements, laws, promises, treaties, etc., other times it is difficult and this is where the aspect of human dignity comes in. For example, if you agree to buy a neighbor's car for an agreed upon price. You give your neighbor the money, your neighbor gives you the car. Fair and square, justice done. On the other hand, we know an employer should pay employees a fair and living wage while at the same time the employees should work diligently for the time they get paid. But what if they don't agree on what is fair? Employers may try to pay employees less than the employees think they deserve while the employees may work less diligently than the employers think they should, bringing on conflict.

While we can't individually solve all of the injustice we see around us, we can make sure we ourselves are being just towards others. Usually it just takes a bit of thought and honesty about the situation. As far back as the Greek philosophers who wrote about justice, there has always been an understanding that the greater harm comes to the person who commits injustice rather than the victim of it. While the person who commits injustice may be causing harm to a person by violating someone's human dignity he or she is actually destroying his or her own human dignity in the process.

In the end, if we remember the second part of the Great Commandment "Love your neighbor as yourself" we should be pretty much on the path of justice by giving to others what is due to them and treating them according to their God given human dignity.

God Bless you,
Father Joseph Byerley

PRAYER FOR PERSECUTED CHRISTIANS

O God of all the nations, the One God who is and was and always will be, in your providence you willed that your Church be united to the suffering of your Son.

Look with mercy on your servants who are persecuted for their faith in you. Grant them perseverance and courage to be worthy imitators of Christ. Bring your wisdom upon leaders of nations to work for peace among all peoples. May your Spirit open conversion for those who contradict your will, that we may live in harmony. Give us the grace to be united in truth and freedom, and to always seek your will in our lives.

Through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Lectio Divina

LECTIO DIVINA — PRAYING THE SCRIPTURES —

The Lectio Scripture Group that began during Lent will continue to meet monthly to pray with the Scriptures.

Anyone interested in joining are most welcome. The group will meet on the Fourth Monday of each month, at 10AM
in the basement of St. Patrick Church.

Remember, Lectio is a spiritual practice of reading a Scripture and slowly extracting from it meaning for my life. Guido II (1114-1193), a Carthusian Monk, wrote of this practice and saw Lectio as a “four step ladder” that takes one to God. He directs us to read a text progressively, four times:
First reading: read the text. Second reading: mediate on the text, Third reading: pray on the text, Fourth reading:
contemplate the text. It is a practice of taking the text ever deeper into our daily lives. Come and learn. Come join us.
Next gathering is Aug 22nd. Questions? Please call Jerry Washko at 856-845-6944.

MONTHLY BOOK STUDY: JULIAN OF NORWICH B. 1343

Julian is a fourteenth century mystic known for her positive theology written in her work: The Revelation of Divine Love.
Many might be familiar with the writings of St. Faustina and her Chaplet of Divine Mercy, made popular by Pope St. John Paul II. Julian's work predates St. Faustina by 600 years.

Join me in reading the writings of Juliana over the next few months. We will meet once a month to discuss the assigned readings from her work. Her writings may give rise to questions, faith sharing and deeper insight into God's love for us and the beauty of our Christian life.

Our meeting is on Thursday, Aug 25th at 7PM in the Parish Center classroom. We meet once a month.
